

Russian manufacturer s active optical module PAM4

Overview

Ara, the industry's first 3 nm PAM4 optical DSP, builds on six generations of Marvell leadership in PAM4 optical DSP technology. It integrates eight 200 Gbps electrical lanes to the host and eight 200 Gbps optical lanes, enabling 1.6 Tbps in a compact, standardized module form factor. The Marvell® PAM4 optical DSP portfolio, including Spica™ and Nova™ DSPs, addresses the critical need for high-bandwidth optical interconnects to power AI infrastructure. Marvell leads the pluggable module ecosystem with low-power, high-performance silicon for AI, cloud, enterprise and 5G. By upgrading to the 3-nm process, Marvell is positioning the new Ara DSP to be a key building block of 1. Building on the success of the Nova 2 DSP, the industry's first 5 nm. Spica Gen2-T adds to the Marvell industry-leading portfolio of 800 Gbps DSPs, the most widely deployed optical DSPs in cloud data centers and AI clusters. 6T, 800G, and 400G optical transceiver series are engineered to meet the rigorous bandwidth and performance requirements of next-generation data centers. 6T OSFP DR8 modules—available in both Retimer and.
